FIGHTING NEAR YPRES

Battle in West Flanders Continues Vigorous With German
Advances Toward Dunkirk
Say Today's Dispatches.

Over the long battle line of Europe comparative quiet prevailed today except in Belgium where the conflict continued with deadly fury.

On the Serbian border sharp fighting is in progress and the Turks are in action against the Russians, but on the action position in France along the east Prussian border and in Galicia there apparently is a lull.

On the success or failure of the German attempt to force a way to the English channel at whatever cost, may depend the future of the campaign, not only in Belgium, but also where.

Today's official French statement, the only authoritative word up to early afternoon, sketched out a battle line which adhered closely to that previously reported. In contrast with yesterday's frank admission of a German advance including the capture of Dixmude, the French statement of today was non-committal. Fighting continues with violence, on the western end of the line, it is said, but there are no indications whether the Germans have succeeded in pushing further their advance. It is assumed in all quarters that the utmost energy of the allies is being expended in efforts to halt the German movement west of Dixmude, as the road lies straight to Dunkirk on the channel. Minor engagements are reported at other points on the line but apparently there have been no movements of note.

Along the Serbian border, the only other point from which heavy fighting is reported, the Austrians are making a determined effort to break through and complete the campaign before the opening of winter. Austria's recent assertions that her troops had defeated the Serbians and were carrying the fighting well on Serbian soil found partial confirmation in official information from Nish, where it is admitted that the Serbians abandoned some positions along the northern border "for strategic reasons."

A decisive victory, however, is claimed by the Serbians in one of the numerous engagements now in progress along both the western and northern boundaries. A force of six thousand Austrians who crossed the Danube at a point about thirty miles from Belgrade, the Serbian war office says, was put to rout, one thousand being killed, two thousand captured, and many drowned in the river.

The Russian pursuit of the Germans along the Silesian frontier has slackened, and the Germans are strengthening their position along the line of border fortresses in expectation of an attempted Russian invasion.

Petrograd makes a statement that the retreat of the Germans was due to the failure of the crown prince in command of the center to hold his position. Both General Von Hindenburg in the north and General Danikl in charge of the Austrian forces in Galicia are said to have held back the Russians until the retreat of the crown prince's forces compelled them to fall back to avert disasters.

Another report which also may be classed as gossip, is to the effect that General Danikl, discredited by the recent course of events, is moving south across Galicia, and has refused to co-operate further with the German staff. Austria admits the withdrawal of her troops from western Galicia, and the investment of Przemyśl. Fighting continues in the Carpathians.

NEGRO IS INSOLENT TOWARD PRESIDENT DURING INTERVIEW

W. M. TROTTER OF BOSTON TRIES TO ENGAGE WILSON IN AN ALTERCATION.

ATTEMPTED ARGUMENT

Delegation of Black Men Make Protest at Alleged Discriminations Against Their Race.

Washington, Nov. 12.—President Wilson, while receiving a delegation of negroes today, who came to the White House to protest against segregation in the government departments, objected to the tone of the speech made by W. M. Trotter of Boston, and told the committee that if it called on him again it would have to get a new chairman. The president added he had not been addressed in such a manner since he entered the White House.

Charge Discrimination.

The delegation charged that Secretary McAdoo and Comptroller Williams in the Treasury, and Postmaster General Baughman had enforced segregation rules in their offices.

President Wilson replied he had investigated the question and had been assured there had been no discrimination in the comfort and surroundings given to the negroes. He added that he had been informed by officials that the segregation had been started by the negro people, and that they took the position that the negroes had equal rights with whites, and that these rights should be respected.

Wilson Ends Interview.

They denied there had been any friction between the two races before segregation had been begun.

Mr. Trotter insisted to what they had to say and then told the delegation that Trotter was losing control of his temper, and that he was going to stop the discussion of the matter further with him.

Austrian Invaders Killed Like Sheep

Russians Surprised By Austrians, Whose Artillery Fire Turns Right Wing.

Berlin, Nov. 12.—The Frankfurter Zeitung has received the following dispatch regarding the reported defeat of the Russians near Czernowitz, in the Austrian province of Bukovina:

"The Austrians made an unexpected movement crossing the Prut a few kilometers northward of Czernowitz, and suddenly attacked the Russian right wing. The Russians, completely surprised, and after short resistance decided to fall back upon their base, which seemed free.

"However, there were then taken under fire by Austrian artillery, which caused terrible losses among the Russian detachment. The battlefield was covered with corpses.

"The Russians were beaten yesterday in the Galicia battle, repulsed in an action between Rosnow and Labonow.

"Included in the information given out in official quarters today concerning the fighting are the following:

"Turkish headquarters report that the Turks have captured the fortifications of El Arish in Egypt, close to the Turkish frontier.

"They also became possessed of four English field guns and certain telegraph material.

"In Caucasus the Turks have inflicted further defeat on the Russians who lost numerous prisoners.

"The Austrians have surprised and defeated the Russians north of Czernowitz in this fighting the Russians suffered heavy losses.

"The Arabians of Nejd and Mecca are mobilizing against the English.

Mr. Barless was brought to the office of Dr. James Mills, where the hand was dressed, requiring ten stitches to close the ragged wounds.

The accident occurred on the farm of Miles Fanning, three miles east of Janesville.

Mr. Barless will be laid up for some time, as the lacerated wounds will be slow in healing.

AWAITS A NEW TURN IN MEXICAN CRISIS

President Sets No Date for Evacuation of Vera Cruz Pending Further Developments.

Washington, Nov. 12.—President Wilson and his advisors today are waiting further news of conditions in Mexico before determining upon a date for the evacuation of Vera Cruz, and as much as all factions in Mexico have agreed to the evacuation of the city, the American demand for guarantees is believed to be pressed that the troops would be ordered to leave the southern ports as soon as conditions make it possible.

General Villa at the head of a large column of troops have begun marching south to Aguas Calientes to attack the Carranza forces under General Gonzalez at Queretaro. Official advices today say that the Aguas Calientes convention ordered the movement. General Gonzalez, who is loyal to Carranza, has several thousand troops at Queretaro. The loyalty of a large part of his force is doubted, and already one report said that many of his men refused to obey his order. Fighting at Leon, south of Aguas Calientes, is also reported, but no details have been secured.

General Blanco, who has announced his intention of remaining loyal to the Carranza, started for Mexico City to take command of the troops. He was arrested at Saltillo by General Gonzalez. George C. Carothers, American consular agent, reported that he was accompanying Villa on his march south.

Uncertainty Prevails.

Uncertainty ruled again today in the Mexican situation. General Gutierrez has taken the oath of office as provisional president at the Aguas Calientes convention, which simultaneously declared General Carranza first chief of the constitutional army as being in rebellion. Many generals who swore the allegiance to the Carranza, are leaning to Carranza, while some of his most loyal followers are preparing to desert him.

German Shells Hit American Consulate

Building of U. S. Government at Rheims is Partially Destroyed—Long Since Evacuated.

Rheims, France, via Paris, Nov. 12.—A German shell exploded yesterday in the street opposite the American consulate. The front of the building was cut up by the shrapnel bullets, but neither the American consul nor the flag on the consulate was damaged. Six weeks ago German shells hit the consulate building, but this is the first time the consulate has been struck.

William Bardell, the consul, left here by direction of Ambassador Herrick three weeks ago, and the consulate has since been vacant. There is not a single American in Rheims.

Shields Statute Is Unveiled in Missouri

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Carrollton, Mo., Nov. 12.—Missouri today honored the memory of Brig. Gen. James Shields by unveiling a $10,000 statue to this warrior statesman, who lies buried here.

General Shields holds a unique place in American history. He served as a senator from three states—Illinois, Minnesota and Missouri—after having first served as the first territorial governor of Oregon. He went into the Mexican war as a brigadier general and was commissioned as the Civil War. He died June 1, 1879, of pneumonia, and was buried here almost forgotten. Two years ago congress appropriated $1,000 for a monument and Missouri decided to honor the general who gave the state its name. Shields began the practice of law at Kaskaskia, Ill., in 1832.

LOOK FOR AUTHORS OF BOMB DISASTER

New York Detectives Believe Traffic-ers in Women Are Responsible for Explosion.

New York, Nov. 12.—One hundred detectives spread a drag net over New York city today in their quest for the men who wrecked the entrance to the new Bronx county court house and the city marshal's office by powerful bombs at eleven last night. The detectives followed the theory that the bombs were exploded by a band of traffickers in women, several of whom had been sentenced to long prison terms.

Letters Threaten Death.

More than a score of letters have been received by Louis D. Gibbs, who was sentenced today, warning him of vengeance. Some of them warning him of "the death King Humbert received." One of the bombs was intended for the city marshal's office, and was placed at a spot where he was expected to pass out of the building at the end of the night's session of his court. The other bomb apparently was meant for the city marshal, John D. Heffling.

Three girls were slightly injured by the explosion, and thousands of persons swarmed into the streets from the explosion, and many blocks and entrance into the new court house was wrecked. Fifteen thousand dollars is the estimated damage done.

Warsaw, Nov. 12.—Representatives of the Petrograd relief fund for Poland arrived here today with fifty carloads of provisions for destitute families and $130,000 in money for the relief of the Medians.

The relief fund is a fund to which earth near Warsaw machine guns, rifles and ammunition which had been concealed by the forces of Emperor William in mounds on the battlefield, which had been given to the Petrograd relief fund. The presumption here is that the Germans intended to utilize this material in a contemplated new attack on Warsaw.

PLACES QUARANTINE ON ALL LIVESTOCK SENT FROM CHICAGO

GOVERNOR ISSUES PROCLAMA-
TION IN REGARD TO ANIMALS
SHIPPED INTO STATE
SINCE SEPT. 1.

CONTINUE INSPECTION

Federal Officers Are Busy in Eastern Portion of Rock County, Which May Also Be Quarantined.

Madison, Nov. 12.—Governor McGovern issued a proclamation today for the suppression of foot and mouth disease, and its carriers, all shipments of cattle, sheep or goats now in Wisconsin originating from or through the Union Stock Yards of Chicago, to be in quarantine, and that all such shipments, which Wisconsin since Sept. 1, 1914, shall be referred to the state veterinarian at once. The order is effective today.

The governor has also in contemplation the issuance of an order placing portions of Racine, Kenosha and Rock counties in quarantine.

Milk Transmits Plague to Man Says Specialist

That the foot and mouth disease cannot be transmitted to human beings by eating the diseased milk, but that it can be contracted by drinking unboiled milk or butter made from the milk of an infected cow, is the opinion made by a Chicago specialist who has studied the disease.

"The symptoms in man," he says, "are as follows: There is fever, this is usually low, but may reach 100 degrees, and is accompanied with a chill, loss of appetite, pain in muscles, back and head, with a numbness in the abdomen. Nausea and vomiting are common. The primary seat of infection is the mouth. The disease when uncomplicated is usually of a mild character, and two weeks from the onset. Severe cases may last six to eight weeks.

"The disease is transmissible to man through infected milk or butter and cheese and also directly from the saliva or contents of the vesicles of infected animals gaining entrance through abrasions on the skin. It is especially frequent in children and in those whose work brings them in contact with diseased cows. It appears that this disease is the same as the one by eating the flesh of infected animals."

Government Inspectors Arrived Here Last Evening and Left This Morning for the town of Bradford. They inspected herds here but found none infected. It is planned to slaughter the cattle in the town of Bradford tomorrow, these being the only cattle at that vicinity wherein the disease has thus far secured a foothold.

Reports from the county are indicative of a general outbreak of the disease. No new outbreaks have been detected within the past several days although inspection by state and government experts has gone on without stopping. Inspectors who are breathing easier results are the few cases found in Rock county. Although the first reports threw some what of a general scare throughout this section, it is felt that the first reports were exaggerated and that the spread of the disease is not as bad as formerly suspected.

Railroad stockyards and all cars for stock transportation are being given a thorough fumigation. The roads were prepared for just such an emergency with appropriate supplies of disinfectant and spraying apparatus within easy reach.

Evansville today reports that no new cases have been discovered in that vicinity although government specialists are inspecting herds here also. The cattle in the state quarantined where the fever was originally discovered have been destroyed. Every means to eliminate any further danger from the germ has been taken.

The plague among the state cattle is the worst. Today four more states were placed under the federal quarantine. These include North and South Dakota, Iowa and Colorado; the latter having the state quarantined. The Tennessee's report comes from Beirut.

It is thought that the destruction of Iowa comes consequent to similar conditions in that state. The government is quarantining Wisconsin. The same is true for the Dakotas. These states are the grazing pastures of many herds shipped from Chicago for fattening and for the infected cattle were included in the shipments from the Windy City germ yard.

Until further notice, local C. M. & St. P. Railway officials were notified that no shipments of other stock, including swine, shall be received for transportation for the states of Colorado, Iowa, North and South Dakota. Thirteen states are now under the federal quarantine order resulting from the spread of the foot and mouth disease.

St. Louis Yards Open.

East St. Louis, Ill., Nov. 12.—The St. Louis National Stockyards were reopened here at six o'clock this morning for the receipt of native cattle and hogs, after having been closed since last Saturday, in compliance of the federal quarantine order resulting from the spread of the foot and mouth disease among cattle in Illinois and other states.

Cattle and hogs will be accepted only from states not now quarantined and slaughtered as rapidly as they can be sent to the packing houses. The quarantine order partially lifted from the state by the state veterinarian does not yet permit the East St. Louis yards to hold cattle in the yards to reship them.

Minister Should Not Hold Position More Than 10 Years Says Dean

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Boston, Nov. 12.—"The requirements of good business should decide the ten years of office of a minister," said Rev. F. Brown, dean of the Yale school of religion, before the New England Congregational conference last night. "A minister," he said, "has no right to hold office beyond the time in which his value is high. It is not well to require too closely into the spiritual profits of the last ten or fifteen years of the pastorate of many ministers who have had their pulpits forty years."

URGES UNIFORM LAWS TO PROTECT WORKMEN

GOV. DUNNE OF ILLINOIS ADDRESSES GOVERNORS ON LABOR CONDITION MEASURES.

ADVISES CO-OPERATION

Declares That All States Must Enact Similar Provisions in Justice to Manufacturers.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., November 12.—Governor Edward F. Dunne of Illinois who spoke before the conference of governors here today, made a strong plea for co-operation between the states to secure the enactment of uniform laws providing for the safety of workmen. Such co-operation, Governor Dunne declared, is essential for the protection of business and manufacturing in states which have enacted progressive laws against unjust competition of business and manufacturing in other states which have no such laws, or fail to properly enforce them.

"During the last four years, the state of Illinois," Governor Dunne said, "has enacted and enforced laws for better working and sanitary conditions in shops and factories that have cost employers more than $4,000,000. Though directors of several large corporations have approved this legislation," he said, "I have been forced to meet unjust competition from factories located in less progressive states where this additional expense has not been operated."

"A progressive state," said Dunne, "which enacts humane laws for the conservation of human life and limb, and for the preservation of the health, morals and well-being of its laboring classes, is thus placed at a great disadvantage as compared with a non-progressive state, which, by its failure to enact such laws, invites the manufacturer whose only aim is financial profit, within its borders, and thus enhances the manufacturing development in such non-progressive states."

Need for Uniformity.

"It must be apparent," Governor Dunne proceeded, "that if such salutary laws must be passed and enforced—as all must concede—that there should be more or less uniformity of legislation in all the states where such industries are carried on, or the enactment of federal legislation covering the subject matter. This latter alternative has been seriously urged by many manufacturers and political economists, but, in my judgment, is not feasible or possible. Federal legislation under the interstate commerce act, may be applied to interstate railroads, and other interstate utilities, but most of the product of our manufacturing industries are not impressed with an interstate character. A federal law must be uniform in its application to all parts of the United States, and a law which might be salutary and advisable relating to the manufacture of goods in the department districts of New York, Philadelphia and Chicago, might be grossly unjust and unduly onerous in western villages and cities."

"I believe that co-operation between the great manufacturing states," Governor Dunne continued, "toward the securing of the same or similar laws affecting industries is urgently demanded and not difficult of attainment. The time has come, in my judgment, when the different states of the union, engaged largely in the manufacture of industrial products, should, through committees, created by the legislatures, or appointed by the executives of these states, arrange for an investigation of the conditions relating to manufacturing and the advocacy of the laws covering these industries insofar as the health, sanitation, morals and safety of the men and women engaged therein is concerned. I am confident, moreover, that such commissions, after meeting in a spirit of fairness and impartial justice, can submit to the legislatures of their respective states recommendations for the enactment of uniform laws which will be just to both employer and employee and meet the demands of modern society for laws, which will conserve the health and lives of the workingmen and the workingwomen of the republic."

Extradition Problem.

Importance of a careful scrutiny of the facts before granting extradition papers for the return to other states of alleged criminals, was urged upon the conference of governors today by Governor S. V. Stewart of Montana. "Some governors have adopted an iron-clad rule to the effect that they will not consider any question involved in a matter of extradition but the identity of the individual under arrest," said Governor Stewart. "While no doubt that rule serves to save some time, at the same time it is hard to believe that grave wrongs may not be done to liberty and personal rights by the enforcement of such a rule."

Governor Stewart cited an instance in which a man was permitted to go free without prosecution on condition that he leave the state in which he was arrested. He complied with this condition. Two years later a new county grand jury was elected who dug up the old charge and attempted to have the man returned to stand trial. In this instance, and many similar ones, said Governor Stewart, a real injustice would have been done if the request for extradition was granted. A hearing, he said, developed the facts in the case.

"Governors are called on to act quickly in issuing requisition papers," he pointed out, "because of the danger in many instances that the wanted man may flee. Because of this fact," he said, "requisition papers are many times issued in good faith in cases where it is plain duty of the governor upon whom the requisition is made to refuse the request."

Public Land Question.

Western governors united in calling for justice in the play from the federal government in its public land policy affecting their states, before the Governors' Conference Wednesday. Governors Ammons, Colorado; Carey, Wyoming; and Elbert, Minnesota, vigorously supplemented the plea of Governor Spry, Utah, that the west be allowed to develop its own resources without interference from Washington. Governor Luther E. Hall of Louisiana presided at the afternoon session.

Governor Ammons was violently denunciatory of the United States' reclamation service, charging that under the last three presidents it had disobeyed the orders of the nation's executive in refusing to allow the state of Colorado to use public lands for the purpose of building a reservoir to develop arid lands. Magazines which printed Coloradoan articles from an ultra conservative viewpoint were charged with misrepresentation and had refused, he said, to print other side. He declared these writers "aged Rockefeller" with owning all the coal lands in Colorado, while in truth, he said, the oil king owned but 800 of the 472,000 acres of coal lands under lease by the state.

VAGRANT SENTENCED TO FIFTEEN DAY TERM.

Martin Farrell escaped the usual ninety day sentence in the municipal court for being drunk and for vagrancy, by convincing Judge Maxfield that an unfortunate accident in a foundry was largely to blame for his being in the wrong path. Farrell exhibited two badly mangled hands, and was let off with fifteen days and

REVERSAL IN PLAY BETWEEN SECTIONS

East Keeps at Old Game and Thus Far Has Bettered West in Sectional Battles.

(By Hal Sheridan.)

New York, Nov. 12.—It certainly is interesting to observe that just when you think you know all about something you are all wrong, or have been fighting in a circle that brought you nowhere.

Thousands of burning words have been written of the superiority of the West over the East in the matter of the open game in football. The East has stuck to the old line smashing and end circling attack. The Western air has been pierced and shattered by pigskins hurled straight and true by the huskies of the schools in that section. It was a bad state. The East was hide bound. The coaches over here wouldn't accept a fine new method of hitting the ball along toward the goal line when they saw it. The biggest yelp followed the visit of Notre Dame to West Point last year when the Indiana boys forward passed the Army to death. But look what happens now.

Notre Dame grabs a rattler and journeys to New Haven this year and Yale licks 'em. Michigan visits Harvard and the Crimson comes out on the long end of a 7 to 0 score. The Eastern teams were picked to win but where they expected to be shown up by a dazzling game of passing, they found themselves hardly thrashed by the old line and the line. It was a narrow squeak at Harvard. They all say that if quarter-back Huggitt hadn't got his signals mixed, if someone hadn't forgotten his middle name, or something of that sort, Michigan would have scored two touchdowns when the ball was right up to Harvard's goal line a couple of times. Who won or lost doesn't cut any great Euro in the long run, but what about this open chatter? You can search us.

If some sort of society for the prevention of Cruelty to the Boston Braves isn't organized soon even the Cincinnati Reds may beat them out in the pennant race next year. The Braves are being welcomed home and loving cupped to death. They must have an awful lot of home, or each Brave is returning in sections.

Banquets and loving cups are still thrown around in careless fashion wherever a Brave happens to be a part of the recognized population. About all of the Braves have had one thing or another done to them since the World's Series and Manager Stallings is still accepting cups as a part of his vaudeville performance.

TEAM'S CHANCES FOR A VICTORY ENHANCED

Fiercest Battle in Years Will be Fought Out Between Beloit and Janesville Highs on Saturday.

With a line of mediocre strength, and a backfield intact, the Janesville high school football seven will face their historic rival, the Beloit squad, on the gridiron in this city Saturday afternoon, in one of the fiercest encounters ever staged on a local football field.

The Janesville team are in perfect condition for the fray, and are free from lesions. The addition of Taylor and Badger to the line, has seen a change in the opinion regarding the outcome of the contest. The statement of Curtis, mentor of the Janesville aspirants, in which he turns defeat into victory, brings about a renewed confidence instilled in every student within the red brick institution.

A vaudeville scrimmage held yesterday, has placed the team in the win column, and barring any knocks or in luck today and Friday, the Janesville school will send one of the classiest teams onto the field Saturday in many a year.

The advent of Beloit to Janesville Saturday, when it is estimated three hundred rooters will accompany the purple squad, means more than tongue can tell. It means much last year, when the local team and practically the entire school went to Beloit, only to be beaten after a brilliant contest was played. The intense rivalry between the two schools tells the story. Beloit possesses a great team and Janesville knows it. To beat the local city warriors means more than a victory over the Beloit team; it means a victory over Beloit as a city. That is what all past contests have meant.

Students are wearing tags on their breasts that read, "Let's Beat Beloit." A defeat after such thorough preparation would be a catastrophe, and as the battle draws nearer, the team and students await with anxiety the opening whistle that will bring the enemies together.

Plans to have a monster parade, in which both elevens will be in carriages, led by the band to be charged by the students, and followed by automobiles and foot pedestrians, all rooters, are being formulated. Such a celebration would remind the alumni of the olden days when two brass bands greeted the Port Adams and Janesville teams, preliminary to the vicious battles that were played in those days under the old rules.

MAROONS TRIM REDS IN OPENING MATCH

Edward Kohler's Quintet Easily Down Huelbe's Boonies by 231 Pins in First League Contest.

The Y. M. C. A. bowling league opened last evening on the new ways at the association building, when Edward Kohler's Maroons decisively trimmed the Reds, headed by Captain Albert Huelbe, by 231 pins, after three games of stellar bowling. Despite Huelbe's high score of 207 in the first game, the members of the team could not strike, and as the result lost an interesting trio of games in a row. Webster Kopp rolled 197 in the first game, the American League contest. The Brown-headed Charlie Merrick, will meet the Cardinals, captained by Dr. S. F. Richards, Friday night, in the second match of the new league. Following is last night's totals:

Maroons	Reds
V. Mott.....157	182
V. Solle.....105	162
V. Kopp.....137	123
E. Kohler, Capt.....143	147
Dr. F. G. Wolcott.....145	172

Sport Snap Shots

More figures are at hand to furnish the fans with food for thought during the off season or what the past big league races developed. It is seen by a perusal of the unofficial records in Sam Crawford of the Detroit Tigers led in the American League in extra base slugging. "Wahoo Sam" pounded out eight home runs, made twenty-two two-baggers and twenty-six three-baggers. He was not quite up to Cactus Cravath's mark in the National League, as his hitting netted him ninety-eight extra bases, as against 100 for Cravath. This Speake was the second best slugger in the American, his long wallop netting him a total of nine-one extra bases, or six times the second man in the National league, Sherwood Magee. The older league, therefore, carried off the palm for slugging. But in respect to speed on the base paths, the American league excelled. Vesperus Burns stole six bases, while Ed Delahanty of the Yankees pilfered seventy-three. Eddie Collins topped Herzog and Dolan, who had forty-four and forty-one, respectively.

Joe Engel, the Senators' young pitcher, who was slated to barnstorm with the All-American team, has canceled his engagement. It was announced that Connie Mack of the Athletics had requested from Griffith the loan of a slabbist, and the Senators manager selected Engel, believing that in so doing Engel would profit not only financially but in point of experience as well. When the news was broken to Engel he had beamed with joy and he immediately began preparations for his trip. But a week later Pa purchased a farm in Virginia, and with the acquirement of this land Joe's hopes of making the trip vanished. The elder Engel was of the opinion that his son would be more valuable to him doing chores than to the All-American team. Joe has a flock of fancy pigeons, and besides these the pigs, cows and horses must receive attention every day. So Joe is still barnstorming, but not with the Mackmen.

Knowlton L. Ames, Jr., quarter-back of Princeton's football team, couldn't help playing fine football for Princeton if he wanted to. Ames is son of Snake Ames, the man whose great playing helped Princeton to the championship twenty-five years ago. In 1889 Snake Ames was the greatest fullback in the game. His smashing attack gave Princeton victories over Yale and Harvard. The Tigers the national champion. Snake Ames now is chairman of the Princeton coaching committee. He does more than any one else in building up Princeton's attack. This capacity he this year is coaching his son. Young Ames, a sophomore, scored the first touchdown made in the Palmer stadium.

A surprising lack of generalship has been shown by the various quarter-backs this season. It would appear possible though some course of special instruction pointing into the heads of these young warriors the general theory and practice of offense.

Louis Stoddard will captain the American team of poloists when they go to England to play for the cup. Just who will make up the team has not been decided, as the day of the challenge is too far off to think of the personnel of the team at the present time. But one thing is certain: Stoddard will not only be a member of the team if he is alive and in good physical health when the challenge is sent, but he will be the captain on the field. This much was settled recently by members of the committee of the Polo Association. H. P. Whitney will continue to act in an advisory capacity and will coach all the players who will strive for positions on the team. An effort will be made to have Mr. Whitney again take active part in the games for the cup but there is not much likelihood that he will resume playing in international matches. When the subject was broached to him some time ago he said that he was out of polo as an active participant for the possession of the international cup. He stated that the ordeal of training was too severe for him and that the young players must start the brunt of the battle to recover the cup.

At The Apollo. Opening tonight for a four days' engagement comes the Garconetto Brothers, novelty European acrobats and hat throwers. Their demonstration a skill that is marvelous and very interesting. Arthur Morris, card manipulator and monopolist, presents a pleasing act in which he introduces a number of novelties in card manipulation. The act is different from the usual sleight of hand performances and will prove attractive.

The Mysterious Lady in Black with the black mask appears on the Apollo stage today in one of the greatest acts of the kind on the vaudeville stage. She has a magnificent voice and renders grand opera with the talent of a prima donna. She rides a spirited black Arabian horse and in addition entertains with motion pictures of her ability as a rider of wild horses.

Kept at the Office.

Mrs. Brown always looks very dubious when her husband comes home a little later than usual and says he has been "kept at the office." She never looks as if she believed the excuse, which, as a matter of fact, is quite genuine. But some wives seem incapable of realizing that their husbands really are kept late at the office sometimes, and nowadays competition is so keen that a man can't afford to go off at the tick of the clock if he wishes to keep his position. The sensible wife doesn't make a fuss when he is "kept late." She just notices that he looks more tired than usual, and lets him have his dinner and a smoke after in peace and quiet. And you usually find that the husband who receives this sort of treatment is never late home if he can possibly help it.

As Ruth Saw It. Of course little Ruth should have been able to answer more precisely when the teacher asked her to describe a frog. But she gave a description that at least is picturesque when she replied: "A frog, teacher, is a big green bug with warts all over it. And it keeps its mouth open all the time, and—and—it's always sitting down behind and—and—standing up in front."

SAY JUDGE NEARLY ALL THE TRAINMEN ARE USING THE REAL TOBACCO CHEW NOW.

YOU TOLD YOUR FRIENDS ABOUT IT JUST LIKE OTHER PEOPLE DO.

THE STATION AGENT SHARES HIS PLEASURE WITH THE GOOD JUDGE.

GOOD news travels fast—it's the users of "Right-Cut" that are boosting the Real Tobacco Chew.

Well we've said all along that tobacco chewers are just waiting for a smaller, more satisfying chew.

No virtue in the big wad. They want less size and more substance—just what "Right-Cut" gives them—the fine, rich taste of pure, sappy tobacco, seasoned and sweetened just enough.

Take a very small chew—less than one-quarter the old size. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just nibble on it until you find the strength chew that suits you. Tuck it away. Then let it rest. See how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies without grinding, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is the Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

It is a ready chew, cut fine and short so that you won't have to grind on it with your teeth. Grinding on ordinary candied tobacco makes you spit too much.

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

Camp of the French army, which are appearing in the Scientific American. The special war issue of November 7th this expert explains why the advance of a victorious army is so slow in these days of modern warfare. When the art of defense has been so elaborately developed:

"A study of our trenches will show why the progress of the armies is so slow. They outline most of the trenches as they have been established by the enemy. The infantry when entering them are entering real fortresses. They are sheltered from view, from the shells and from the rain.

"Neither our artillery nor our infantry can see the Germans encamped in them. To reach them it is necessary that our shells fall exactly in the trenches. The battle is no more a fight in the open, the offensive takes the character of a hunt, the danger everywhere comes from underground. Before fighting the enemy we must unearth him.

"Moreover, when we realize that the German artillery has also its fortified works; that everywhere it surrounds itself with wire netting in order to stop the assaults; that beneath the cannon muzzles are concealed, the purpose of which is to destroy our infantry; and that behind the field artillery is placed the heavy artillery, whose far-reaching shells are able to protect the retreat with a wall of fire, then we can understand the effort demanded of our troops to displace the German army from its positions and to drive it from the woods and the hills where it seemed to have taken root."

GOOD COMMON SENSE.

Here is some sound doctrine and the Walworth county board holds the palm for daring to sit up and put it into definite form. Freak, useless and unnecessary laws passed by recent legislatures are given their inning in the resolution passed. It is a strong "right from the shoulder" blow that is dealt, and few of the commissions are not taken into consideration.

The tax commission and board of control are called autocratic and arrogant. The county board of education law is branded as "useless, expensive and unnecessary" while the railroad rate commission is asked to be confined to "its legitimate and proper work in order that local communities may manage their own affairs and that the Almighty may attend to His."

Responsible self-government is asked for towns, cities and villages. Regarding the second choice law the supervisors say: "Resolved, That from actual experience we believe the second choice law of the election law is unjust, expensive, unnecessary and confusing and should be repealed."

Need is seen for wiping out "useless commissions and self-important empires." The resolution winds up with the following: "Resolved, That local government be taken from the Madison counties and placed in the hands of the people, where it rightfully belongs; and be it finally

"Resolved, That the county clerk be instructed to place a copy of these resolutions in the hands of the incoming governor and our members of the senate and assembly."

The resolution is signed by a committee consisting of Charles Wistwell and George W. Sperbeck.

The suit of the state against the city to recover the expenses incurred by the extra assessment, two years ago, will be watched with interest by the taxpayers. The supreme court will be called upon to decide the question which includes more than the three thousand dollars involved, because it has to do with the authority of the Tax Commissioner as asserted by City Attorney Dougherty. Referring to the case, from almost every angle, the people of Wisconsin have occasion to rejoice that they are escaping from an era of reform, and that some of the reformers are headed for the toboggan slide.

With $150,000 available for the highway fund next year, Rock county ought to build many miles of good roads. This money is intelligently spent, the county will have something to show for it besides windrows of gravel dumped in the middle of the highway. Some of the money should be spent in prosecuting men who pretend to be road-builders, and who assume the divine right to go out and tear up the public highway, and leave it in dangerous condition. The roads belong to the public and the public has some rights which should be respected.

The letter from the secretary of agriculture, on the hoof and mouth disease, published in last night's Gazette, is well worth reading, because of the information contained. It answers many questions, which have been asked, among them, "Who pays for the condemned cattle, and how much?" It seems that the value is fixed by an appraiser, appointed by the state, and all expenses are shared alike by the state and general government. It is to be hoped that the rigid methods enforced will soon eradicate the disease, which is just now cursing a dozen states.

Wisconsin's senatorial fight is likely to land in the senate, with chances in favor of Huston, who will be in the hands of his democratic friends. Senator La Follette so cleverly hates McGovern that he will doubtless oppose him, and the few friends he has left in Wisconsin will forsake him. It's a long lane that has no turn and La Follette and his friend, Roosevelt, are close to the bend in the road. They are entitled to a good, long rest.

Two train loads of automobile trucks for Greece, have been shipped by the Kissel Automobile company, American manufacturers, in some lines of goods, are reaping a harvest, as the result of the war.

Killing Off the Race. From the Christian era till the present time, as statisticians and historians tell us, there have been less than two hundred and forty warlike years. Up to the middle of the nineteenth century it was roughly computed that nearly seven billion men had died in battle since the beginning of recorded history, a number equal to almost five times the present estimated population of the globe.—Christian Herald.

THE WAR NUMBER. The current issue of the Scientific American, November 7th, is the war number, devoted to many interesting articles on army and navy equipment, now being used in Europe. These articles are written by men at the front, and are very instructive. The following is a sample, under the title of "Why Armies Advance Slowly."

The methods followed by the armies in France are not generally well understood from the published reports sent by inexperienced observers, who at best get but a fleeting glance of the firing line from a distance. Quite the contrary is the case of the "Letters from the Firing Line," by an Aide-de-

We know that the chief ingredient of prosperity is CONFIDENCE. When the business world has confidence, it rushes ahead and does things. Every body benefits as a result. The enterprising know that the present war means greater supremacy for America in the world's trade. They know that when peace comes, the United States will emerge from the war period much stronger, in relation to other nations, than it was before.

They know that our people will have learned to supply themselves with a great many things they formerly purchased abroad.

They know that European nations will have become better informed as to the things we can supply, and that Europe will have formed the habit of coming to us for manufactured products that it never thought of obtaining from us before.

They know that we have the greatest store of natural resources, the largest money supply, and the largest number of high-class consumers of domestic products of any nation in the world.

They know that we have a great era of progress and commercial achievement before us.

Hence the justification for unbounded confidence. To be a laggard now would be an almost unforgivable offense.

NEW ADDITION WILL BE COMPLETED SOON

Addition to Edgerton High School Near Finish—Will be Used for

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.) Edgerton, Nov. 12.—The addition to the local high school is nearing completion and will soon be ready for occupancy. The building, when completed, will, for arrangement, equipment and size, rank with any of the smaller high school buildings of the state. The addition was arranged for after the past few years had determined the inadequacy of the old building to afford sufficient room for the new courses which have recently been added and for the increasing high school enrollment.

During the past two years Edgerton has been conducting her educational system upon the basis of a six-year elementary school and a four-year secondary school. Under this arrangement the seventh and eighth grades are organized and administered in the same manner as were the four grades made up of what is generally known as the high school. Classes are organized and teaching arranged under a departmental plan. This new form of organization proved so successful that the school board decided to add to the high school building the decision was reached that the six years of secondary education should be made up of six one-room buildings.

The addition provides for the conduct of a six year high school. The gymnasium has been enlarged and is now completely surrounded by the new building. The new building is now completely surrounded by the new building. The new building is now completely surrounded by the new building.

Waldie then introduced Dr. Dean and L. R. Davies, who read their papers on the subject of the evening. Following which several members took part in the discussion and questions were asked Mayor P. F. Zell and several members of the board of the city. The honored guests of the club for the occasion, Mr. Davies had prepared several charts showing comparative figures of the Whitewater Electric Light company, owned and operated by private capital, and the municipally owned plant which is giving Columbus, Wis., such good service. Dr. Dean and several of the councilmen made a recent trip to Columbus to investigate the plant there, and were satisfied the city of Whitewater could own and operate the local plant at a considerable saving to the people of this city. There is an opportunity now for the city to purchase the plant, as the franchise expired last year. If the waterworks which are already owned by the city, and the lighting plant could be run under one management, it would mean better service at a cheaper rate. The waterworks bonds found a ready sale and doubtless the most bonds would be sold if placed on the market.

Coppins went to Milwaukee again Wednesday night, and the burial was this afternoon at Milton.

"I have now taken six bottles and have gained fifteen pounds; have a good appetite and can eat anything. It is wonderful what Vinol has done for me in building up my health. My own friends hardly know me and when anyone comes into my office the first thing I begin to talk about is Vinol."—Mattie Denning, Norfolk, Va.

Idle Suggestion. "You ought to typewrite your poetry," said the harsh editor. "Great Scott!" replied Mr. Penwinkle; "if I were expert enough to do that kind of typewriting do you think I'd be putting in my time on poetry?"

When I will put the very best crowns in your mouth for about one-half of that price?

I just had a REPEAT order from a lady, for whom I placed one of my crowns along side of a $10 job years ago. She says my work has proven just as good as the other and she could not see ANY REASON for paying double my prices. So she comes back for more.

MAY OIL ROADS OF COUNTY NEXT YEAR

COUNTY SUPERVISORS TAKE FAVORABLE ATTITUDE ON COMMITTEE'S RECOMMENDATION.

BARLASS ENTERTAINS

Board Members and County Officials Enjoy Dinner at County Asylum Today.—Sheriff Host Friday.

Supervisors of Rock county at their session this morning adopted a favorable attitude on the proposition of oiling county and state aid highways, the condition of which would warrant the application of oil. On the motion of Supervisor McCarthy of the town of Porter, the highway committee was instructed to investigate the cost of equipment and application thoroughly and report upon the same at the January meeting.

Supervisor Treadway of the road committee reported that the committee after some consideration of the matter during the past summer, recommended the advisability of oiling all roads which in the opinion of the county highway commissioner were in a condition to be oiled.

The committee's report evoked considerable discussion, in the course of which Supervisor of Highways C. E. Moore was called upon to give his proposition somewhat during the past summer, said Mr. Moore, and with the consent of the road committee have done a little experimenting. The problem of the cost of oiling, I find, used and the market for oil, which we had done east of Evansville, the cost was four cents per gallon, or about $120 to a mile, as 2,600 gallons are required to a mile of road nine feet in width.

"As the result of that experiment I found that unless the oiling is well done, it should not be done at all. By that I mean that we must have necessary equipment, including a revolving sweeper, to thoroughly clean the surface of all dirt and surplus oil, then, following the application of the oil, a coating of sand or screenings should be applied."

Mr. Moore went on to explain that the oiling would be a great boon to the county in the way of preserving the roads, and that it would save a large sum of money by preventing the damage to the roads by heavy rains. On one piece of road liable to heavy washes in time of rain, Mr. Moore said that where oil was applied the road remained intact, while the other, where no oil was used, was washed away in places and even at the unlined shoulders there was much damage.

Mr. Moore declared that he would never recommend oiling any roads that were in the best of condition. All the newly constructed water holes, macadam stretches should be treated, he said, and probably forty or fifty miles would be in shape for oiling next year. The usual plan is to apply oil to the roads every year and then skip the third year.

Considerable interest was shown by the supervisors on the oiling question, and several expressed themselves in sympathy with the proposition.

The matter of improving the acoustics of the circuit court room at the court house was discussed at the session this morning, and the building committee was ordered to consult with Judge Grimm as to the advisability of making changes and improvements.

The supervisors and county officials were the guests at dinner today of Superintendent and Mrs. D. M. Barlass at the county asylum.

The delegation made the trip in automobiles and enjoyed a sumptuous banquet, followed by short speeches. The dinner is an annual affair, and was this year a farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Barlass, who end their term of service on the first Monday of January, 1915. Sheriff Whipple, the succeeding superintendent, will entertain the board at the county jail at noon on Friday.

The matter of the depositary for the county funds was a special order of business before the board at three o'clock this afternoon.

Corn is King in Rock county today if the exhibit of the various yields by the contestants in this year's growing season, which was the subject of the Jansville Commercial Club's contest, is any indication. The contest, which was held at the Y. M. C. A. building, resembled the prize winning tables at a successful grain growers' meeting, and the contestants, who were their parents and friends, and others interested in the development of corn in Rock county as a staple crop, had an animated background for the whole season.

The rivalry between the various contestants has been most keen. The various fields have all been carefully inspected by the judges of the contest, and the prize winners were announced during the summer and harvest. Prof. A. B. West and his class in agriculture from the high school were present to present to inspect the exhibit and plans for the winter. A program. There was also a goodly number of farmers from throughout the county present to see what the prize winners would result in and all expressed their interest in the contest.

It has been many months since the planting season, but during the long summer and harvest season the crops have been growing and the prize winners have been growing and the prize winners have been growing and the prize winners have been growing.

After the dinner George S. Parker, president of the Commercial Club, opened the afternoon's program with a few well chosen remarks. The announcement was made that the Commercial Club planned for the winter of $500 for the 1915 contest, thus insuring another exhibition next year. Mr. Parker welcomed the contestants and their friends, congratulated them on the results of the summer work and in behalf of the Jansville Commercial Club bespoke their co-operation in the future.

Mr. Parker said that in future years the contest will be limited not only to corn, but to other grains and farm produce as well. He then introduced the speakers of the afternoon and a most interesting and instructive program was followed out.

LA FOLLETTE GIVES VIEWS ON ELECTION

Wisconsin Senator Declares People May Expect Boost in Railroad and Utility Rates.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Madison, Wis., Nov. 12.—Senator La Follette's magazine commenting on the results of the election in Wisconsin this month, the editorials in the magazine discuss the platform pledges made by the candidates before election and compares these with their statements since election. Senator La Follette shows what may happen in the next two years and places the blame for this reversal of public sentiment on the governor for not vetoing large appropriation measures.

"Upon the last legislature, and especially upon the present governor rests in large measure the responsibility for the result," says the editorial. "His unwise action engendered antagonisms and destroyed all possibility of co-operation in legislation for the session. Public interests were ignored and personal politics belittled and besmirched everything. But all this, had as it was, can never justify the progress of republicans in turning over the reconstructed government of Wisconsin—the result of fourteen years of toil and sacrifice, the precious work of their own hands—to men who in private life or public service have been the creatures of servants of corporations."

"But of one thing we may be sure, the destruction of the good work expressed in scores of statutes, the spirit, the soul of which is the Wisconsin idea of fundamental democracy, nothing vital shall be lost. Every advance movement in history has experienced its checks and reverses from time to time. But nothing can permanently harm a righteous cause. Defeat only strengthens the courage and resolution of men worthy to fight for human progress."

With this issue Senator La Follette's magazine changes from a weekly to a thirty-two page monthly, the same of the Commonsense, edited by William J. Bryan. All of the previous departments will be continued, with the exception that more space will be given to special features and an agricultural department.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

"I'D NEVER put any money into a labor-saving device for housekeeping," a business man said to me the other day when we were discussing the question of household efficiency.

"Why?" I asked.

"The average woman doesn't want labor-saving devices," he said. "I pursued."

He shrugged his shoulders. "I don't know why, but she doesn't." Now I think this accusation must be true, for its author is a man with a wide knowledge of the manufacturing interests, and when he says such a thing it means something. But why is it so?

Why shouldn't housekeepers welcome with eagerness and open arms anything that lightens the routine part of their work? One answer might be that few women can afford such devices, but my informant assured me that that is not the solution. Again and again efforts have been made to introduce labor-saving devices into homes where comforts and even luxuries abound, and have failed.

I have thought a great deal on the subject, but to little effect, until a day or two ago when I was talking to another business man, and he told me he had just been calling down one of his foremen for not being lazy enough.

"Martin's a glutton for work," he said. "He hasn't a lazy bone in his body, and consequently he never tries to save himself. I told him if he were a little lazier he'd try to think out ways to save himself, and we'd all be the gainers in the end."

Now what is not just what my informant said? She has been accustomed for centuries to working long hours. "Man works from sun to sun," woman's work is never done. She has been accustomed to spending infinite time and strength on details and her efforts have made her not only physically and too lazy mentally to rebel and find the way out.

Put a woman to work with a tool which is out of kilter and she will patiently plod along day after day, overcoming its inefficiency by spending more time upon her task.

Put a man to work with the same tool and he will be so impatient and exasperated that he will not do his work until he has fixed that tool, and then he will save the time spent a hundred times over.

Patience is the armor of womanhood, but is an armor that sometimes keeps out good things as well as bad. It is a condition and a time to rise up and change those conditions for the better.

The stigma of laziness has always been a good housekeeper's greatest horror. I wonder what she will say to the accusation that she is not lazy enough.

Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am seventeen years old. I have a boy friend of the same age. We live in the same house, but he goes to a city and I want to go to another place. He is very kind to me, but he is not for about six months and then quit. He was visiting our home town and he said that you had a really good time writing to me any more. Do you suppose he does not care for me any more?

(2) What makes the face break out? How can that be cured? (3) What is good and harmless to keep the hair curly and fluffy a long time? (4) What is good to make heavy eyebrows and eyelashes?

(1) My dear girl, the boy evidently does not care for you. Forget him. You are too young to be keeping company with boys under the circumstances. If you had a really good time writing to me any more, do you suppose he does not care for me any more?

melted butter; after stirring all together (not mixing it very much), bake in very hot oven in muffin rings. These muffins served with jam and tea or coffee will make a nice light lunch for a tea circle or card party.

Quick Graham-Raisin Bread—Two cups graham flour, one cup sour milk, one-half cup butter, two tablespoons sugar, one teaspoon soda in a little hot water, one cup raisins. Mix well and bake 40 minutes in moderate oven.

THE TABLE.

Panned Oysters With Toast—Separate the oysters and juice, let juice come to a boil, add butter size of an egg, salt and pepper to taste. When boiling, add oysters, cook till oysters are done. Have toast nice and brown and buttered well. Cover each slice of toast with the panned oysters and serve.

Scalloped Potatoes—Peel and cut an eggplant into small pieces and cook in salt water until sufficiently tender to press through a sieve. Add salt and butter, while peeling and boiling. Break in one egg, beat mixture well and sift in sufficient flour and a pinch of soda to give a consistency to the batter that it may be dropped from the mixing spoon into a pan of deep hot fat. Fry, drain and serve.

Chop Suey—Two pounds veal, cut in dice; one tablespoon lard or any fat; season to taste with salt and pepper. Steam one hour. Add one cup water, four onions, two stalks celery, cut in small pieces; one cup mushrooms, half teaspoon flour. Boil altogether one hour. Boil half pound rice separately and serve separately. This is a meal for five adults.

Sponge Gingerbread—One cup light colored molasses, one-half cup granulated sugar, one cup boiling water, one cup butter, one cup flour, one teaspoonful of ginger, one teaspoonful of cinnamon (if you like), a large teaspoon soda, one egg, pinch of salt and two cups flour. Bake in dripping pan. Boiling water should be added last thing. The mixture will be very thin, but when baked will be light and spongy. Cut into squares with a hot knife.

Ice Box Cake—Two cakes German sweet chocolate, two tablespoons powdered sugar, two tablespoons hot water, six eggs, one dozen lady fingers, and vanilla. Mix sugar and chocolate in double boiler, when cold add gradually yolks of the six eggs, mix thoroughly, then add the whites beaten to a froth. Lastly add the vanilla. Line mold with waxed paper, put in lady fingers, then layer of custard, and continue until mold is filled. To make it richer macaroons may be added. Bake in refrigerator until next day. Serve with whipped cream. Sufficient for ten persons.

EVERYDAY TALKS TO EVERYDAY PEOPLE

(BY FRANCES JOYCE KENNEDY.)

If a person asks you your age, do not glare unkindly at them; do not knock off a couple of years and try to answer nonchalantly. Take inventory of the condition of your arteries and from them, answer. The man or woman of thirty years who is as old as the hills is physically older than a person years older whose arteries are flexible and whose blood is good working order.

In the human body there are about thirty-five feet of main arteries, or blood vessels, which extend from the mouth through the intestines to the tip of the toes. The arteries in the body are like the main line branches run to every part of the body, making hundreds of feet of smaller tubes running from the top of the brain to the tip of the toes, and from the heart to the tip of the toes.

DIVISION MENACES SUFFRAGE CONCLAVE

Dr. Anna Shaw and Grace Wilbur Trout Head Opposing Forces in Big Nashville Convention.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 12.—Warlike talk was heard in the hotel lobbies today before the National American Women Suffrage Association formally opened its six day session here.

Unless early forecasts fail, the battle that will break over the convention when the merits of the two suffrage amendments now before congress comes up for discussion will be the greatest in the history of the organization.

The possibility that the fight over the two amendments may broaden into it develops into an attempt to unseat Dr. Anna Shaw, president of the association since 1904, was being discussed by the delegates today. It was rumored that the opposition, if there is any, will center around the person of Dr. Anna Shaw, president of the association since 1904, was being discussed by the delegates today.

The Wife's Money

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"I did not know there were two families named Putney in Grace church," said Mr. Putney, holding a letter in his hand. "This letter evidently belongs to the other family."

Mrs. Putney came toward him and, leaning on her husband's shoulder, looked over her husband's shoulder at the letter.

"Why, that is for us," she said, a little breathlessly.

"For us?" he echoed. "We never borrowed any money from R. A. & A. How can it be for us?"

"Why, I borrowed it," said his wife, beginning to sweep vigorously. "I wanted to get some things for Agnes when she was married and I had to have money to go to her out in Idaho."

"What do you mean?" said Mr. Putney, still staring blankly at the letter.

"Yes, I did, Ben," said his wife, adjusting her dusting cap before the mirror.

If it were in truth no more than ten minutes it seemed upward of an hour before the bonds grew slack and Barcus with an effort that cost him much of the skin on one wrist worried a hand free, then loosed the other, removed and spat out his gag, and set hastily about freeing his friend. That took but a few instants—little more than was needed to rid Rose of her bonds.

That much accomplished, a pause of profound consternation followed. The darkness was absolute in the tunnel, Jimmy having taken the candle away with him; and its silence was rendered uncanny by the sobs and murmurs of the lovers, that sounded somehow fearfully remote and inhuman to Barcus—who had turned immediately to the bulkhead and was, without the slightest hope, groping about its joints and crevices in search of some way of forcing it.

"Barcus—old man!"

"Yes?"

"Have you any idea—"

"Devil a one!"

A pause.

"Did you notice what that black-guard had fixed up?"

"What do you mean?"

"Why—at the bottom of the shaft—I got only a glimpse coming in—the door of the powder room was open, and I saw a fuse set to the top of a keg of blasting powder . . ."

"What's the good of that? We're fast enough as it is!"

"Simply to make assurance doubly sure by causing a cave-in."

"I seem to remember hearing or reading, some place, that tunnels have two ends. If that's true, the far end of this ought to be about the safest place when that explosion happens—if it ever does."

"Something in that!"

"Got any matches?" Barcus inquired, as Alan hurriedly helped Rose to her feet.

"Never one."

"Nor I. We'll have to feel our way along. Let me lead. If I step over the brink of a pit or anything, I'll try to yell and warn you in time."

Alan caught his friend's hand in passing and pressed it warmly—a caress eloquent of his gratitude to Barcus for taking their peril lightly, or pretending to, for the sake of Rose.

A ticklish business, that—groping their way through blackness so opaque that it seemed as palpable as a pool of ink. And haste was indicated; they stumbled on with what caution was possible against pitfalls—a gingerly scramble. Then an elbow in the tunnel—sensed rather than felt or seen—but them off from direct communication with the bulkhead, and at the same time opened up a shaft of daylight, striking down through that pitchy darkness like a column of fine gold.

Cries of joy, amazement, incredulity choking in their throats, they stumbled forward, gained the spot immediately below the shaft, looked upward, dazzled, to see blue sky like a coin of heaven's minting far above them, at the end of a long and almost perpendicular tunnel, wide enough to permit the passage of a man's body, and lined with wooden ladders.

The end of the lowermost ladder hung within easy reach from the floor of the tunnel.

But even as Alan lifted his hands to grasp the bottom rung the opening at the top of the shaft was temporarily obscured.

Thrilled with apprehension, he hesitated: Marrophat was up there, he little doubted; hardly like that one to overlook the ladder-shaft in preparing the tunnel to be a living tomb.

"What is it?" Rose demanded at his elbow, in a shaken whisper.

"Nothing," he lied instantly, and seizing the bottom rung, swung himself up. "But wait for me till I signal the coast's clear," he warned before committing himself finally to the ascent.

Marrophat or no Marrophat at the top, there was nothing for him to do but to grasp the nether ladder with a steady hand, unflinching. Even though he were shot dead on emerging from the shaft, it were better than to die down there, like a rat in a trap.

He had climbed not more than half a dozen rungs when a voice hailed

"Law—Oh, Mister Law, I say—don't come up—here's a present for you."

Pausing without answer, he looked up. A few drops of water splattered his face, like heavy rain. Almost immediately the blue sky was permanently eclipsed; a heavy cascade of water, almost a solid column, shot down the shaft with terrific force.

Half-drowned and wholly dazed, he felt himself picked up and dragged away from the waterfall.

Then, as his senses cleared, he comprehended the fact that the tunnel was already filling; that where they stood it was already ankle deep; while the water continued to fall without hint of letup.

CHAPTER XLVI.

Flood and Fire.

Screaming to make himself heard above the roar of the deluge, Barcus yammered in Alan's ear:

"That devil! He's found the reservoir—opened the sluiceways—turned it into that shaft! We're done for!"

Alan had no argument with which to gainsay him. Silently getting on his feet, silently he groped for Rose in the darkness, momentarily becoming more dense as the fall of water shut out the light, and drew her away with him, up the slight incline that led back to the bulkhead.

The hour that followed lived ever in his memory as an hour in hell. No ray of hope lightened its impenetrable blackness. He could say nothing to comfort the girl; bravely though she strove to keep up her heart, time and again she shook in his arms like a mad thing, when panic dread caught her by the neck as a terror catches a rat.

To die there, in the darkness, like so many anxious animals trapped in a well!

The water mounted rapidly. Within five minutes it drove them back to the elbow in the tunnel; within ten it lapped their ankles as they lingered there, doubting which was the greater peril, to advance or to stand fast and let the flooding tide snuff out the fires of life. To return to the neighborhood of the bulkhead was to court the death indicated by the fuse and the keg of blasting powder.

Of a sudden—the thought crossed Alan's mind that Marrophat had arranged the latter solely to keep them away from the bulkhead. Now that he thought of it, he felt certain that the powder room had been deliberately disclosed to him by Jimmy.

Probably, then, the keg and fuse were but stage properties—or possibly . . .

Whether or no, was death in one form preferable to the other?

He was decidedly of the opinion that it were better to be extinguished once and for all time, in the space of a second, annihilated by an explosion, than to die thus lingeringly.

On this consideration, he drew Rose with him back to the bulkhead.

When they had been some fifteen minutes beside the bulkhead, the water mounted the head of a slight rise perhaps ten feet behind them, and poured down in ever deeper volume to back up against the barrier. It was waist deep, however, before they retreated to the head of that rise.

Half an hour later it was waist deep there, on the highest spot in the tunnel.

In fifteen minutes more it had reached their chins. And they stood with head against the roof of the tunnel.

Holding Rose close to him, Alan kissed her lips, that were as cold as death.

Then, fumbling under water, he found the hand of the man at his side. The water lapped his lips like a blind hand . . .

In the tunnel that branched off from the main shaft, beyond the bulkhead, some thirty minutes before this juncture, a candle had guttered in its stick, left carelessly thrust into the wall by Marrophat's lieutenant, and guttering, had dropped a flaming wick into a little heap of bone-dry debris. This last flame, licked hungrily at the timbering that upheld the falls of the tunnel. The timbering caught fire without delay. In a space of time incredibly brief the flames were spreading right and left, the tunnel was a vault of blistering fury.

As Alan said his last mute farewell to Rose and Barcus, the fire spread out in the bottom of the shaft and invaded the powder room.

Alan had guessed aright at Marrophat's design; the keg of blasting powder was less than an eighth full; its explosion could not possibly have effected the cave-in Alan had at first feared.

But what Marrophat had overlooked was the proximity to the keg of some several sticks of dynamite, masked by a film of earth that had fallen from the crumbling walls.

When the blazing fuses dropped sparks into the blasting powder this last exploded right willingly and the dynamite took its cue without the least delay.

The resultant detonation was terrific. The bulkhead was crushed in like an eggshell barrier. Part of the walls fell in, but the tunnels and shaft remained intact. The released flood streamed out and spread swiftly to the farthest recesses of the burning tunnel. Dense clouds of steam filled that place of terror as the fires were extinguished.

Swept with the stream as it poured out of the tunnel, Alan contrived throughout to retain his hold round the waist of Rose. Barcus shot past him unseen in the darkness. It was not until Alan had contrived to catch an unburned timber and stay himself and his almost witless burden beneath the mouth of the shaft that he discovered Barcus alive, if almost unrecognizable in his mask of mold and soot, battling back toward the shaft against the kneedeep tide.

Half-blinded and stifled as he was by the reek of steam and powder fumes, Alan struggled with himself until his wife were passably clear.

Immediately before him dangled the hoisting bucket and rope.

Surrendering the care of Rose to Barcus, Alan climbed into the bucket and stared upward, examining the walls of the shaft for a way to the top.

There was none other than the most difficult; gaps too great to be bridged by climbing showed in the wooden ladders.

The one feasible route was via the rope. And there was nobody at the top to work the windlass—and Alan hoped there would be nobody to oppose his essay.

He addressed himself to the task without murmuring—lifted himself upon the rope, wound it round one leg, and began that heartbreaking climb. How he accomplished it he never knew. That it must be accomplished was his one, all-absorbing thought. And somehow, by some almost superhuman effort, it was eventually accomplished.

He arrived at the top of the shaft far too exhausted to show surprise when, falling in half-fainting condition within two feet of the brink, he saw Judith Trine running like mad across the clearing.

But without her aid he would not within hours have been able to work the windlass and lift Rose and Barcus to the surface.

CHAPTER XLVII.

The Last Warning.

In the chill, violet-shadowed dusk of that clear evening, a chap-fallen motor car crept sluggishly into the little mountain town of Mesquite at the heels of two mottled mules, driven by a chauffeur who steered with one hand while the other flourished a crackling whip-lash over the backs of its sole motive power.

Its one passenger, a cripple as helpless as the car itself, nudged in a corner of the rear seat, saluted Mesquite with a snarl. Though he was in sore need of such rude comforts as the town stood prepared to afford him, his demeanor toward it was that of one who suffers an indignity rather than begs accommodation.

And now, as the car crawled to a pause before the Mountain house—Mesquite's one caravanserai—and Mesquite itself, to the last flea-bitten hound, gathered round to view this wonder; Mr. Trine's indignation and chagrin distilled words of poisonous import.

Far from resenting this, Mesquite, pipe in mouth, hands in pockets, admired and applauded, and rather resented the change that befell when two other strangers (whose earlier appearance in town had helped make that one day memorable beyond all others in Mesquite's history) charged out of the Mountain house and interrupted the elder devil with cries of greeting and jubilation.

The leader of these answered to the name of Marrophat; his companion was a person named Jimmy. Mesquite acquired this information through paying close attention to the substance of their communications with the cripple. More than this, however, it learned little. Something seemed to have been accomplished by the two, something that was highly gratifying to Seneca Trine; for he was chuckling almost mirthfully when lifted from the car and carried into the hotel.

What passed between the trio after they disappeared behind that bed-chamber door Mesquite could by no means guess. But that a celebration of some sort was in progress was evidenced by the frequency with which Marrophat and Jimmy called on the bar for more liquid refreshment.

And toward midnight one belated Mesquite paused in the street outside the Mountain house for one last curious stare at the lighted windows of Mr. Trine's quarters.

Dinner Stories

Among those visiting an art exhibition held recently in town was an old fellow who wandered about looking at the paintings with interest. Finally he stopped before a portrait which showed a man sitting with his hands.

"What kind of a game, Willie?"

"Well, I put him on a blue and he turned blue. I put him on a green and he turned green. I put him on a red and he turned red, and then—"

"What happened then, Willie?"

"I put him on a plaid and he bust himself trying to make good."

Scott Liked Work-Pressure.

Scott, who was poet, novelist, lawyer, too, would have been greatest of all as journalist. Listen to this from his Journal for February 15, 1826: "Yesterday I did not write a line of 'Woodstock.' Partly, I was a little out of spirits . . . Partly, I wanted to wait for some new ideas. . . . Partly, I was a little too far beyond the press. I cannot pull well in long traces, when the draught is too far behind me. I love to have the press thumping, clattering and banging in my rear; it creates the necessity which almost makes me work best. Needs must when the devil drives. . . . There is the very spirit of journalism; and that devil, surely, is the printer's devil!"

The jack of all trades during all ages has been the butt of the satirist. The following story illustrates the fatal propensity to cover too much ground at the same time:

Little Willie's father presented him upon one occasion with a pet in a high-backed chair. Tacked to the frame was a small white placard reading: "A portrait of J. F. Jones by himself."

The aged man read the card and then chuckled sarcastically:

"Not fools is these art peopies," he muttered. "Anybody dot looks at dot picture would know dot Jones is by himself. Nobody else is in der picture."
